

Materials Notice

This shipment contains prototypes, samples or drawings (collectively “Materials”) that include technical, proprietary and confidential information (“intellectual property”) of Vishay Intertechnology, Inc. and its affiliates (“Vishay”). The Materials may be covered by Vishay’s intellectual property, including but not limited to issued patents, pending patent applications, and trade secrets. All rights in any intellectual property included in the Materials are reserved to Vishay.

Vishay is both a leader and an innovator within the electronic components industry. Vishay works hard to maintain these leadership positions and invest in technology to improve product quality and research to develop new and improved products.

As part of the sharing of Vishay Materials, we hope you understand Vishay’s expectation that our partners will respect Vishay’s intellectual property rights and not share the Materials with a third party.

As part of the expectation of confidentiality, distribution of the Materials or information relating to the Materials is limited to you and your affiliates having a need to know. No permission is granted for providing the Materials or the information to any third party.

This notice is not intended to alter any contractual or other confidentiality obligations between you and Vishay.

Vishay believes that mutual respect for intellectual property is a cornerstone of our strong relationship and looks forward to many more years of partnering with your company.